

The City of Burnaby designated Beresford Street, from Dow to McKay Avenue, as a pedestrian-friendly space for public art. Pieces from celebrated artists will inspire conversations, ideas, and creativity as people living in or visiting the area move through their days.

DESTINATION ART

Seven pieces currently make up the Art Walk, and as more projects complete along the street, more art will appear. With wide sidewalks, outdoor seating, lush trees, and, of course, original art, the Beresford Art Walk shines new light on public spaces.

TELFORD ON THE WALK

7
Imagined by the Instant Coffee artist collective, Say Nothing in Bright Colours is a brilliant display of sequins reflecting the light on the north side of Central Blvd at Station Square.

5
Created by Joe Fafard, Evangeline and Bay B  b   are a pair of bronze, powder-coated horses standing in the grass on the Metrotown Library grounds.

4
Old Column by Lead Pencil Studio depicts a Douglas Fir as it transitions to lumber, in a 25-foot metal sculpture on Beresford Street at Willingdon.

6
Lying above a water feature in the Crystal Mall courtyard, Aurora, Goddess of the Dawn, gracefully stretches her bronze body sculpted by Colin Kwok.

8
Two metal dolphins charmingly leap from a fountain at Metropolis at Metrotown, originally sculpted by Eric Vanderzee in 1989.

3
2
Shed and Blacktail by Muse Atelier is a story of giant, yet elegant, aluminum deer antlers shed on Silver and Telford Avenues.

1
Douglas Coupland arranged a whimsical 21st century rock garden at the entrance to Telford on the Walk, creating a vibrant contribution to the existing public art collection.

